A Neglected Grave.

The Reno Gazette says: A little mound of dirt on the side of the Glendale road, just below town, marks the spot where lay the remains of the first man who died after the railroad reached this station. He was a stage driver for Woodruff & Ennor, on their Idaho line, and died of small-pox, nearly 16 years ago. L. W. Lee is fencing in the place for a stock corral, and, as the body was not laid deep in the ground, but only covered shallowly with dirt and rocks, the authorities should have it taken up and removed to the cemetery. The first time a band of wild steers go around the corral the skeleton will be uncovered and exposed. It should be looked after.

Appleton vs. Nevada.

The suit of Appleton against the State is recorded in the Supreme Court as follows: "The State of Nevada, ex rel., John R. Newnam vs. State Board of Education—Application for mandamus to compel Board of Education to adopt Appleton's series of readers for use in public schools in lieu of Sheldon's now in use, in accordance with agreement entered into to take effect September 1, 1880, which agreement, it is alleged, has not been fulfilled by the State Board. Alternative writ issued, returnable May 14.

Mrs. Malloy's Stock Troubles.

Yesterday Bridget Malloy was arraigned in Justice Cary's court along with Patrick Malloy, her husband, on the charge of disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Malloy thus gave Justice Cary a clear account of the origin of the trouble:

"It was all about stocks, yer Honor. Ye see, Pat is a north ender, and I puts my skibbines on the middle mines. For don't I know Bob Keating, and a finer gentleman never walked, and as soon as he gets the best of the bonanza gang he'll roast their souls. I says, 'Pat, the dale is comin' in Norcross.' 'It'll be Union or Sarry Nevada,' says he. 'Phat,' says I, 'would ye buck agin' Bob Keting?' 'I would,' says he, 'and then I reasoned wid him. Says he, 'Bridget, when I run a dump car Sarry Nevada I saw fifty feet of ore in the north drift.' 'Then we'll short tin shares,' says I, 'you may be shure Uncle Jimmy'd bate the stock to bed rock. Bob Keating is the biggest miner on the ledge.' Yer Honor, he always seems jealous when I spake of Keating, though Heaven knows, yer Honor, that he has no cause, and when he said I had better get Keating to give me a shift in Hale & Norcross I slammed a tumbler and biff, back came the bread plate."

The Court fined each ten dollars, which Malloy was compelled to pay, remarking as he did so,

"This would buy five share in the north ind."

Null and Void.

Yesterday afternoon Thos. Moore, contractor for the Nevada & Oregon railroad, the famous 30-mile railroad that runs out of Reno and strikes toward the north, was heard in the U. S. District Court in his suit against the trustees of the road. It was a suit in equity to restrain the road from issuing any more stock. Judge Sabin decided that the issue of 50,000 shares was null and void, and issued an order restraining the company from making any further transfer of stock. This wipes out $5,000,000 worth of stock at a single lick.

The Municipal Election.

The Regular Republican ticket received no opposition and was duly elected. There was no excitement and very few knew that it was election day at all.

Fair's Divorce Suit.

The Virginia Footlight publishes the following: To-day a Footlight reporter called at the County Clerk's office and asked Clerk Flanningham, if there had been any papers filed in his office relative to Mrs. Theresa Fair bringing action against James G. Fair to dissolve the bonds of matrimony now existing between them. The usually truthful County Clerk looked surprised at the reporter, and said that no papers had been filed to-day. The representative of the Footlight believed the County Clerk, but took a look at the records to satisfy himself that the County Clerk had made no mistake and was rewarded by finding upon the book the case, numbered "5722—Theresa Fair vs. James G. Fair," which had been recorded yesterday. So the Clerk did not tell a lie, but only equivocated. The suit is brought by Mrs. Fair on account of alleged adultery on the part of Nevada's great Senator. Mrs. Fair charges her husband with committing the crime of adultery with one Fanny Smith at a house on Jessie street, San Francisco, California, sometime in November, 1881. Nevada's statesman is also charged with breaking the Seventh Commandment, by having illicit intercourse with Inez Leonard at the southwest corner of Post and Dupont streets, San Francisco, on the 27th of April, 1883. The plaintiff says she has not lived with defendant since she became cognizant of the facts as presented by her. Plaintiff also states that she was married to defendant in Calaveras county, California, in December, 1863 and the issue of said marriage was four children, viz: James G. Fair, Jr., aged 20 years; Charles Lewis, aged 18 years; Theresa Alice, aged 13 years, and Virginia, aged 8 years. Senator Fair was in town yesterday, but left last evening for San Francisco on important business. It is needless to say that the sympathy of the Comstock is with Mrs. Fair.

The Board of Asylum Commissioners have visited the Asylum, but as yet have made no report.

IX BRIEF.

Stocks are still strong.

The District Court convened at Aurora yesterday.

Travel at the Lake is still light, but the fish are biting heavily.

Charley Thrall, of the V. & T. was presented by his wife with a fine boy on Sunday.

State Printer Harlow has gone to the Eureka convention of the A. O. U. W. which convenes at Eureka to-day.

The ladies and gentlemen taking part in Miss Wederkinch's concert are requested to meet in the Opera House this afternoon at 2 o'clock for rehearsal.

The weather still continues wintry, and people who do not realize that an early Spring means blighted fruit, are growling savagely.

Dr. Carver says he will shoot Bogardus or any other man for $1,000. The attention of the grand jury is called to these illegal threats.

It is generally believed that a man could not cross the Sierra now even on snow-shoes. The peaks have been wrapped in storm clouds for a week, and a regular battle of the elements seems going on within a few miles of the city.

Mr. Chas. Bender Bender drove up from Reno yesterday in 3 1/2 hours with one horse and a Stanhope gig, a new two-wheeled vehicle which is so light that a horse can drag it all day and think he's only out for exercise. The gig can be inspected at Keyser & Elrod's.

Nearly all the inhabitants of Reno were in Carson yesterday on law business. They were the following described gentlemen, to-wit: Jerry Schoelling, W. F. Berry, George A. King, Balch, D. Evans, Charles Bender, A. H. Manning, Thomas K. Hymers, Judge Webster, R. L. Fulton, of the Gazette, Capt. A. C. Bragg, et al.

The following order for a set of teeth was recently received by Mayo Greenlaw from a man at Glenbrook: "My mouth is three inches across, five-eighths inches through the jaw. Sum hummucks on the edge. Shaped like a horse-shoe, toe forward. If you wish me to be more particular I shall have to come thar."

On Saturday night last Buck Murphy was again arrested for flourishing a six-shooter. This young man is becoming quite notorious in that practice, and should by all means be suppressed. It is not generally believed that he intends to shoot anyone, yet his weapon might at some time go off accidentally and hurt a person worth a whole brigade of such amateur desperadoes.

At the North End.

The Chronicle of last night gives the following report of the experts' opinion of the north end strike:

After the visitors had finished their inspection, reascended to the surface, taken a warm bath of water and a cold ditto of whisky, the Chronicle reporter applied his pump. The first reservoir of information applied to was Mr. Joseph R. Ryan, a very level-headed and experienced observer. Mr. Ryan considered the outlook (or downlook) very favorable. The relative pitch of the vein walls proved that the vein was widening rapidly, and he judged the distance exposed along the top to be about 65 feet. The winze was on Saturday down about 25 feet, and the work was being rushed at that point.

Messrs. Boyle, Egan, McDowell and Finlen held about the same views, although "Miles"—who is known to be extremely careful and conservative in the matter of expressions of any kind—said he would "like to see more of it" before committing himself to the positive declaration that was a bonanza. He had three assays made, one of which (from the Sierra Nevada drift) showed $22.48, of which $20.78 was gold—an unusually high per cent of that metal. The other assays were not over $6. He said he had given it "a fair shake" in taking the sample—that he gathered it all along the face of the drift—good, bad and indifferent.

Mr. Thompson, of Douglass & Thompson, said he didn't know anything about a mine when he saw it. He only went down "for a sweat"—and he got it.

Having been told that Mr. John Gillig had been favored with a prirate interview of the "dear little drift," the reporter went for him. Mr. Gillig said it was a mistake. He had not been in the mine at all. He said that the condition of affairs in the mine had been stated in a very candid manner by the management, and that he had no desire to see the prospect. "Those who went down," said Mr. Gillig good-naturedly, "didn't make the trip for the purpose of seeing a bonanza, but to view what reported to be an excellent prospect. Had a bonanza been in sight the stock wouldn't be selling for $4 per share."

Mr. Tisdale, one of the visitors, took a piece of ore from the hanging wall in the Sierra Nevada drift, in which he said he could see free gold. Several of those to whom he showed it laughed at the idea. He had it assayed this morning, with the result: gold, $554 70; silver, $18 85—total, $573 55 per ton. This looks as if Mr. Tisdale was the best guesser on free gold.

Superintendents Patton and Lyman escorted the visitors in their underground tour, and gave them every possible facility to see all that could be seen.
